Chatswood Private Hospital Has Become The First Private Member In Australia To Join The World Association Of Eye Hospitals

Chatswood Private Hospital is proud to announce that it has been accepted to the prestigious World Association of Eye Hospitals (WAEH), making it the first private member to join the organisation in Australia.

The WAEH is an international network of eye hospitals dedicated to improving the level of ophthalmic care around the world by promoting the open sharing of information and knowledge between members. Admittance to the WAEH requires a hospital to pass a strict set of criteria to prove itself as one of the leading providers of ophthalmic care in their home country, an achievement that Chatswood Private Hospital can proudly lay claim to.

Chatswood Private Hospital looks forward to working with the WAEH to not only improve our own level of care and service, but to also contribute to the ophthalmic community around the world.
